Court approves donations, holiday lights for the courthouse

By CHUCK FITTS Rains County Leader staff

The Rains County Commissioners Court held a regular meeting on Thursday, November 13, to donate body cams to Emory, approve installation of Christmas lights on the Rains County Courthouse and appoint the county judge to approve department head timesheets.

During the meeting, commissioners considered a proposal from the Rains County Sheriff's department to donate body cams that they no longer use to the Emory Police department. The sheriff's department has upgraded to a new body cam system and can no longer use the items that were being donated.

The Emory Police department did not have enough functional cams for officers and the 15 body cams would be greatly appreciated. The motion to donate the body cams to Emory was unanimously approved.

The court was presented with a bid to install Christmas lights on the courthouse for the holiday season. The county would pay $2,000 of the cost for installation and removal while the Women's Service Club would pay the rest of the bill.

Commissioner Korey Young stated that the county might have to pay the total cost for the lighting of the courthouse after this year, and expects to dis-

ELECTION 2026

Local primary election sign up underway, new congressional maps in limbo

By CHUCK FITTS Rains County Leader staff

Four local candidates have filed for a place on the ballot of the Republican primary to be held on March 3, 2026 as the new congressional districts in Texas are blocked by a federal court.

According to filings with the Rains County Republican Chair as of press time, Brent Hilliard has filed to run for Rains County Judge and Tony Ingram for Rains County Justice of the Peace. The race for Rains County Commissioner for Precinct 2 has two candidates, Bill McBride and Jim Jones.

No Democratic candidates have filed for local races.

The last day to file for a place on the ballot with a party chair is December 8.

The Rains County Republican Party chair is Lisa Kruger and her email address is rainsrepublicanchair@gmail.com. The Rains County Democratic Party chair is Johnnie Abernathy Hobbs and she can be reached at (903) 948-4533 or jabernathy24@yahoo.com.

Candidate treasurer forms and financial forms must be turned in to the Election Office before applications can be submitted to the party chair.

Local seats that will be up for election include County Judge, County Clerk, District Clerk, County Tax Assessor Collector, County Treasurer, Justice of the Peace, County Commissioner of Precinct 2 and County Commissioner of Precinct 4.

The County Treasurer election will be for a two-year term while all other seats will be for a four-year term.

of the Year by the city at an awards ceremony was being confused with a similarly named award presented by the department. Council members apologized for the confusion and stated that they just wanted to recognize the local first responder for all they do for the city. The council agreed to change the wording of the award to still honor the fire fighter without creating confusion with the other award.

The representative asked the council to make changes to the city's website to update the department's description on their page and replace the logo with the VFD's approved logo. The council agreed to make adjustments to reflect the department's wishes.

The council members were presented with policy and procedures for city council meetings. It was noted that the council never had policy and procedures in place and the ones presented were from the Texas Municipal League's legal site. The policy and procedures were unanimously approved by the council.

The incoming president of the Point Ladies Civic Club continue to use the Point Community Center free of charge for monthly meetings and future events. The motion for the annual renewal was unanimously approved.

The council considered three bids for the replacement of A/C units at the Point City Hall. There were some major price differences in the bids and questions about the different systems.

With none of the bidders at the meeting, the item was tabled until questions could be answered. Council approved a motion to award the city's 50 votes for a nominee to the Rains County Appraisal Board to Alice Wenzel. They appointed Ray Lacy as Mayor Pro-Tem for the council.

The council tabled a request for a variance to allow the placement of a mobile home on property on Smith Circle, as the owner did not attend the meeting to answer questions. They tabled action on the payment plan for a tank for the Point Water Plant, as the plan had yet to be received by the city.

Council reviewed a bid for power washing of the city hall, welcome sign and the National Farmers Union monument. They tabled the item to seek more bids for

Mayor Angela Nelson stated that signage in the city hall lobby and text on water bills and past due notices would let citizens know that notifications from the city appeared before the council would be done through to ask for permission to emails and text messages. CITY GIRL

By Linda Brendle

Any of you who have followed my column for at least ten years or have read Kitty's Story know that in scrawny but little cute stray kitten entered and took lives. our Against all resolve to the contrary, after about early June of

six months she became a house cat and now reigns supreme in the Brendle home. For over ten years, she was an only cat, and she liked it that way. Then, in early September of this year, Sunshine showed up. And now, to add insult to injury, there are three - THREE kittens!

From the beginning, Kitty has had her own unique personality. Her first months in the wild made her very defensive, and she's very particular who she lets into her personal space. David was accepted fairly early, but I have worked hard to be allowed into the inner circle. I think I've blown it for good now, though. From here on out, I'll probably be on the outside looking in. Let me explain.

From the beginning, Kitty rubbed against my ankles occasionally and allowed me to feed her, but there was very little if any actual contact permitted. I finally discovered that I could pet her while she was eating – in fact, after a while she came to demand it. And she would come and lie against my legs on the ottoman of my favorite chair while we watched TV in the evenings. Other than that, if she wanted some real petting, she went to David.

I finally found one way I could get at least a minimum of attention at bedtime, and that was to bribe her with snacks. Over the years we developed a routine where, just before I got into bed, I would say, "Kitty, let's go get your snacks." She'd follow me into the kitchen, run around the island while I counted out a dozen tiny "biscuits" that smelled like a fishing pier but she seemed to think were wonderful, and then she'd beat me back to the bed and be waiting impatiently by my pillow. Once settled under the covers, I'd drop the treats one at a time into my lap, and I was allowed to pet her while she nibbled. Sometimes I was even allowed to scratch her ears and chin, and she rewarded me with a

When we moved into the new house, I thought Kitty's whole personality, or at least her attitude, had changed with the relocation. She climbed onto my lap for bedtime snacks without coaxing, and after the treats were gone, she hung around for several minutes, letting me scratch all around her neck and ears while she purred furiously. She'd leave for a while, but during the night, I'd wake up to find her lying tight against my legs or chest. It was a temporary departure from the norm, though. Within a week or so, she was back to her normal routine – taking the snacks and heading for her favorite ottoman in the living room.

Kitty weathered the arrival of Sunshine fairly well. She growled and hissed at first, but then she mellowed a bit. Now she actually seems to watch for her through-the-door friend, and sometimes she looks at me expectantly as if to say, Well, aren't you going to offer our guest some refreshments? One day when I opened the door, Sunshine walked in and stood on the rug in the entry way. She and Kitty just stared quietly at each other before I coaxed our visitor outside with a bowl of kibble. Then came the kittens.

Kitty let it be known right away that she had no use for the little rug rats. She sat at the door, growling and hissing for all she was worth, but they ignored her. When I continued to pay attention to the little ones, and maybe spend a little more time than usual on the front porch, Kitty began to act out at snack time. Sometimes when I dropped a treat on my lap and invited her to take it, she'd simply sit on the night stand and glare at me. Other times she'd take the snack, roll it around in her mouth until it was wet and sticky, and spit it back in my lap. Once she ran down to the end of the bed and sat on the cedar chest with her back to me. But last night, she found a new way to show her displeasure.

Anyone who has indoor cats knows that you don't walk through the house in the dark without turning on a light and checking where you step. That's because cats make a habit of coughing up hairballs during the night and leaving the results on the floor. Kitty's average is every three or four nights, and Friday night was the one. She usually leaves three deposits, each decreasing in size until she has finally cleared the blockage. I found three Saturday morning and thought I was finished. I was

When David and I first moved here in 2011, we auickly noticed how much sand we were tracking into the house, so we developed the habit of leaving our outside shoes just inside the door and changing into our house shoes. Most times I go back and move my shoes from the door to the closet, but sometimes not. Saturday morning, I noticed the shoes I had worn out to dinner the night before were still by the door, so I went to retrieve them and put them away. That's when I found the fourth deposit – in my right

I get it, Kitty. You don't like the kittens, and in your position, I guess I wouldn't either. But they're going to be around for a while longer, so you might as well get used to them. I'll give you points for this, though. Your aim was spot on.

York New Post once described her as "the most powerful female voice in America." As a fearless crime reporter, she was involved in many high-profile investigations, including the famous Sam Sheppard murder trial and the JFK assassination. In November of 1965, she died mysteriously, but authorities refused to investigate. Her name was Dorothy Kilgallen.

Dorothy Kilgallen was born in Chicago on July 3, 1913. Her family moved to New York City in 1920, and she grew up in Brooklyn. After graduating high school, she briefly attended New Rochelle College but dropped out at the age of 17 to become a crime reporter.

In September of 1936, while working for the New York Evening Journal, she convinced her editors to send her on a "Race Around the World" – competing against reporters from two other newspapers. Dorothy was just 23 years old. She had two days to get her passport and 16 Visas. Off and running, she traveled by plane, dirigible, train, and ship, reporting on her adventures from such places as Germany, Manila, Hong Kong, and Hawaii. The trip took her 24 days, and she came in second place. When she returned home, every house on her block was decorated with her picture and an American flag. First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt even wrote to congratulate her. Dorothy later published a memoir of her trip entitled Girl Around the World.

Ever the hardworking journalist, in 1938 Dorothy launched a newspaper column, the Voice of Broadway, for the New York Journal-American. In it she documented the shenanigans of the social elite, and more. Her writing style was a mixture of juicy gossip, dark politics, and crime, peppered with odd tidbits of trivial and fun information. Dorothy

By 1950, Dorothy's column was running in 146 newspapers earning 20 million readers. Not everyone though was enamored with her take on the celebrity world. Dishing dirt sometimes brought her enemies. Frank Sinatra was one of them. In a running feud with Dorothy, he often referred to her as the "chinless wonder." She responded by writing about his ties to organized crime and the mob.

In 1950, along with her column and a morning live radio program, Dorothy became a regular panelist on the new game show What's My Line?

The show was broadcast live from New York on Sunday nights and had the panelists interview contestants with unusual occupations, with contestants winning $5 for every "no" answer. Dorothy was intelligent, quick witted, and fun, more often than not correctly guessing her way through the game. During this time, Dorothy became a celebrity herself, often outshining the stars she wrote about. But writing was her Dorothy's father, James Kilgallen, a journalist himself recalled "she had an unerring instinct for news. She had a brilliant style of writing. She was accurate and had a flair for the apt phrase. She had an uncanny ability to produce scoops and an inordinate speed in turning out copy." And readers devoured what she wrote.

In her column on August 3, 1962, Dorothy broke the story of President Kennedy and Marilyn Monroe's romantic relationship. She didn't directly Kennedy, but readers were able to read between the lines. One day later, Marilyn Monroe was found dead in her Los Angeles home under suspicious circumstances.

On November 22, 1963, President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas, and life for America changed forever. Dorothy was devasted, having met the President weeks earlier on a White House visit with her young son. And as a crime questions.

Contacts within the Dallas Police Department began Texas. cruised New York nightspots feeding her information.

"Hometown Banking With Your Neighbors & Friends

Dorothy was soon convinced that the assassination was a conspiracy, with many involved. Things got western after the man arrested for the crime, Lee Harvey Oswald, was gunned down on live TV by nightclub owner Jack Ruby. Dorothy obtained and published the transcript of Ruby's testimony before the Warren Commission tasked with investigating the crime. The FBI interrogated Dorothy in an effort to discover her source. She informed the FBI that she "would rather die than reveal his identity."

Dorothy later interviewed Jack Ruby (she was the only reporter to do so) and began carrying a file of documents with her at all times believed to be material she was compiling for a book. She told friends that she was "going to break this case." She believed it would be the biggest scoop of the century.

On the evening of November 7, 1965, Dorothy made her last appearance on What's My Line? She was later spotted in the bar at the Regency Hotel having drinks with a mystery man, and then leaving the bar at about 2 a.m.

Monday November 8, 1965, Dorothy had an appointment with her hairdresser Marc Sinclaire. Sinclaire arrived at her Manhattan townhouse at approximately 8:45 a.m. He found her dead.

Dorothy was found by her hairdresser in a bedroom she never slept in, dressed in clothes she would never wear to bed, with makeup, hairpiece, and false eyelashes still on, reading a book she had finished and disliked, without her reading glasses, with the lights on and A/C running full blast in the cold of November. Eight days after her death, the New York City Medical Examiners report, signed by a doctor who claimed he was never there and didn't sign it, stated that Dorothy died of "acute barbiturate and alcohol intoxication - circumstances undetermined." Her death was never investigated by the authorities. The file carrying all of Dorothy's JFK papers has never been found.

FISHING REPORT

The Texas Parks and Department released the following information for Lake Fork and Lake Tawakoni taken on November 12:

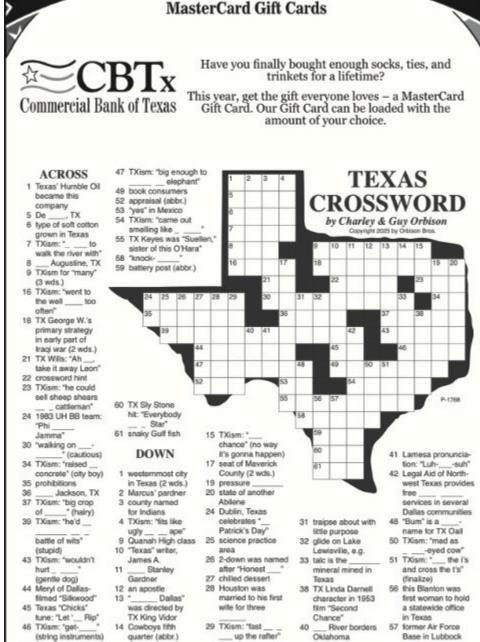

Fork: Good. Normal stain; 63 degrees; 2.45 feet below pool. The morning bass bite has slowed due to cool fronts and dropping water temperatures. Midmorning squarebill crankbaits and spinnerbaits around deeper grass and timber in 4-6 feet is fair. Work Viper XP jigs on big timber in the creeks and ditch edges in 7-10 feet of Black Bass are beginning to school in open water. Frog and baitfish patterns are working well. Cooler nights have dropped water temperatures and bass are cruising. Streamers are enticing bass early and late. Bream are shallow, so try small hoppers. Sand bass are schooling mid-lake.

Crappie are good as the fish transition to a fall and winter pattern. Fish can be found throughout the lake in 10-40 feet of water. Seeing lots of fish still on brush piles, underwater bridges and shallower trees in 10-20 feet. We also still have fish on some lay downs in big numbers. Also look for fish on timber in 18-40 feet along creek channels, flats and the edge of timber lines. Small hand tied jigs actually out fished minnows this week on my boat but any crappie baits will get you bit as water temps cool down. We should see fish on mid lake bridges as the fish migrate towards deeper water chasing the bait

Tawakoni: Good. Water lightly stained; 74 degrees;

1.73 feet below pool. The hybrid striper and white bass bite are good. The fish are moving hard looking for good pockets of water. Fish main lake points in 8-15 feet using inline spinners and slab spoons. The eating sized catfish bite is still red hot. Easy limits on half day trips are the standard right now. Baited holes in 12-20 feet using prepared baits such as punch or dip baits. The trophy blue catfish are beginning to feed. We have seen fish in the 20-30 pound range on medium sized pieces of cut baits in 10-25 feet. Crappie are improving under bridges and on shallow brush with the bite on minnows. Largemouth bass are extremely shallow and prefer fast moving shallow crankbaits and spinnerbaits.

Texan's Anti-Nazi warning fell on deaf ears

by Bartee Haile

Globe-trotting newspaper reporter Hubert Renfro Knickerbocker spoke in Southern Methodist University on

BARTEE HAILE

Nov. 1941, but as usual pro-war message fell on deaf and hostile ears. For years

the awardwinning journalist had implored the public to take a ĥard look at Adolph Hitler and the threat fascism posed to democracy around the world. But he was drowned out by the greatest American hero of the century, who emphatically insisted that events in Europe did not concern this country.

Knickerbocker was a native of Yoakum and a graduate of Southwestern University in Georgetown. A short tour of army duty along the Mexican border and a job delivering milk in Austin preceded his 1919 departure for New York City.

Although Knickerbocker planned on a career in psychiatry, between classes at Columbia he moonlighted as a cub reporter for two Manhattan newspapers. Returning to Texas in 1922, he chaired the journalism department at SMU for a term before leaving for Germany to continue his studies.

Knickerbocker no sooner arrived in Munich than he witnessed first-hand the Nazis' Beer Hall Putsch of November 1923. After selling his top-notch report of the crushed coup, the young Texan decided the newspaper business rather than the lucrative couch game was for

He moved to Berlin and by 1928 was the chief correspondent for the New York Évening Post and the Philadelphia Public Ledger. Mastering the unfamiliar foreign lan-newspaper columns and six dard assortment of kooks books all in flawless German.

A 1931 Pulitzer Prize did not protect Knickerbocker from the wrath of the Nazis after they took power two years later. Quickly deported for his critical coverage of the fascist regime, he interviewed dozens of important Europeans for a best-seller that accurately predicted the Second World War.

Meanwhile, most Americans were trying hard to ignore the disturbing developments on the distant continent. Reinforcing this traditional head-in-the-sand isolationism was none other than pioneer aviator Charles Lindbergh.

On occasions between 1936 and 1938, the Lone Eagle visited the Third Reich and each time came back with a positive impression of the Nazis. "Don't believe anything you read about them in the press," he said. "It's lies. All lies."

Even as the German blitzkrieg rolled through Poland in September 1939, Lindbergh went on nationwide radio to argue more strongly than ever the case for neutrality. Urging millions of listeners to be "as impersonal as the surgeon with his knife," he advised Americans "not to permit our sentiment, our pity, or our personal feelings of sympathy to obscure the

While the British endured incessant bombing by the Luftwaffe, a Gallup poll taken in April 1941 showed that 80 percent of the American people still opposed going to war. That same Knickerbocker month, addressed an Austin audience on a hectic speaking tour, and Lindbergh enlisted in the largest noninterventionist lobby.

In the weeks following the recruitment of the Lone Eagle, the membership of the America First Committee nearly tripled to more than 800,000. Although the orgaguage, he wrote two regular nization included the stan-and crackpots, the overwhelming majority was made up of respectable citizens committed to keeping the U.S. out of another bloodbath in Europe.

Although President Roosevelt had confided the previous year to a key aide, "I am absolutely convinced that Lindbergh is a Nazi," he dared not openly attack the national idol. But after Lindbergh officially endorsed the America First movement, FDR compared him to the northern "copperheads" that sided with the South in the Civil War.

However, it was Lindbergh himself who orchestrated his own downfall. In a September 1941 speech he expressed pity for the plight of persecuted Jews in Europe but in the next breath warned American Jews of similar treatment, if they insisted upon pushing the country into war.

The rash remark was immediately condemned by prominent figures from all walks of life. With a thun-dering crash Charles Lindbergh fell off his unique pedestal leaving his priceless reputation in pieces. America's love affair with the conqueror of the Atlantic was over.

The domestic debate abruptly ended eight months later on Dec. 7, 1941. The unprovoked attack on Pearl Harbor made the war issue a moot question.

Hubert Renfro Knickerbocker derived no personal satisfaction from Lindbergh's disgrace nor the tragic fact that it took an act of Japanese aggression to bring Americans to their senses. He would have much preferred to have been wrong and have world peace than to be right and watch the world go up in flames.

BBB offers the following "to do list" when preparing your home for the colder weather:

Clean those gutters. A build-up of leaves and other debris can cause your gutters and downspouts not to drain correctly. Improper draining can make water spill over your gutters, leading to foundation/basement damage and damage to your fascia boards. In the winter, ice dams can form that can let snow melt underneath your shingles. Get a listing of gutter contractors near you.

Inspect your gutters. Inspect your roof for loose or damaged shingles and make any necessary repairs. Damaged or loose shingles can let in water and ice during the winter, creating interior damage. Visit BBB.org to get a listing of roofing contractors near you.

Test your smoke and carbon monoxide detectors. Making sure these essential safety tools are in proper working condition is manageable and vital to ensuring the safety of those in your home. RAINS COUNTY GOOD SAMARITANS

Rains County Good Samaritans Feed Community Through Diligent Efforts

The Rains County Good Samaritans have become a beacon of hope for those in need, distributing essential food and aid thanks to overwhelming community support. Every Monday and Thursday from 1:00 to 4:00 p.m., dedicated volunteers ĥand out USDA food boxes, ensuring that families have access to nutritious meals.

During the government shutdown in October over 1,000 people were fed, with an impressive 403 food boxes distributed. However, as winter approaches, the organization faces a new challenge: a 15-percent increase in families seeking assistance over the last two months. This surge in demand is expected to rise even further as the Christmas season approaches, making the community's support more crucial than ever.

Community Volunteers Step Up

The heart of the Good Samaritans' operations lies in its team of volunteers. Approximately 75 volunteers dedicate around 1,200 hours each month to support the cause, including county trustees and individuals fulfilling community service requirements, high schoolers needing volunteer hours for college applications, and Boy Scouts working toward becoming an Eagle Scouts.

Donations Make a Difference

Generous donations from local residents have flooded in, comprising food items, monetary gifts, and essential supplies. Financial contributions play a vital role, aiding not only in food purchases but also in assisting families with utility bills. The organization employs two part-time and one full-time worker. The magic and chemistry of fall foliage color

COLLEGE STATION, excessive light energy Texas – The transition of trees' colors from lush green to a variety of warm tones annually marks the changing of seasons, often inducing strong anticipation for a chance to catch a glimpse of the magic.

The chemistry

While fall colors appear as magic to our eyes, it is really a product of color and chemistry.

Trees' leaves contain pigments that play critical biological roles while also reflecting colors like green, yellow, orange and even

"During a tree's growing months, chlorophyll dominates the color makeup of the leaf, creating various shades of green," said Kimberlee Peterson, Texas A&M Forest Service Woodland Ecologist. "Beyond its color and perception to the human eye, chlorophyll is an essential molecule in the photosynthesis process.'

As heat stress or cool temperatures occur, the chlorophyll and green appearance of leaves are destroyed, allowing other Although these pigments begin to appear under changes in the environmental conditions, they were present in the leaf all along.

When pigments such as carotenes, xanthophyll and anthocyanin emerge, they often create the notable fall colors of red, orange, yellow, crimson and purple.

Some Texas-native species contain anthocyanin, a key compound in shading chlorophyll later in the growing season to prevent absorption. The formation of this pigment is dependent on an accumulation of carbohydrates in the tree, the genetic properties of the tree and environmental factors.

Texas-native trees containing anthocyanin include sassafras, sweetgum, bigtooth maple, red oak, Tupelo and sumac. The fall colors produced by anthocyanin are often more vibrant because the red pigment is intentionally produced to block sun-

Some trees do not contain anthocyanin but instead have carotenoids which are responsible for helping trees absorb light energy for dormancy and protect leaves from sun damage after the photosynthesis process is complete in autumn. They can create red, orange and occasionally yellow pigments in the fall.

Carotene and xanthophyll subcategories carotenoids.

Carotenes produce fall colors of red, orange and occasionally yellow. Texas-native trees like black hickory, pecan and elm have contain levels of carotene.

Xanthophyll typically pro duces yellow and orange pigments; however, red, pink and purple pigments may also develop. Texas-native trees like ash, American beech and river birch contain high levels of xanthophyll.

Timing and conditions

As any fall color enthusiast knows, a tree's fall colors are never promised—some years they may produce a swatch of perfect mosaic patterns while other years they suddenly drop their leaves with little to no transition.

"Fall colors are nearly unpredictable," said Peterson. "The destruction of chlorophyll and transition into the emergence of fall pigments closely depends on environmental including temperature, light and water. Fall colors can even be influenced by environmental factors from six to nine months prior to fall."

Where to see fall colors in Texas

While Texas' fall may not resemble that of an east coast fall, there are still many opportunities to view trees' chemical magic.

"East Texas is characterized by soft and hardwood patchwork of fall colors," Peterson. "Central trees, which can offer a Texas water basins, however, are comprised of bald cypress, cottonwood and sycamore trees, which often display a more unified transition to fall.'

For Texans farther west, Peterson recommends destinations such as the Lost Maples State Natural Area, nome to a protected stand Uvalde bigtooth maples. As of Oct. 31, 2025, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department reported that fall colors will emerge at the Lost Maples State Natural Area

While the rest of the country is at or past its peak fall, Texas' peak fall foliage remains one of the latest in the nation. The Smoky Mountains Fall Foliage Prediction map provides resources for tracking fall foliage across the country.

When the crowds were increasing, he began to say, "This generation is an evil generation. It seeks for a sign, but no sign will be given to it except the sign of Jonah. Luke 11:29

We appreciate all the men who worked so hard on Saturday to replace the floor in the back room of the Fellowship Hall.

This week's message from Luke was titled "Give Me a Sign." Even though they had seen Jesus cast a demon out of a mute man, the crowds wanted something bigger, a sign from heaven. This demand was a sign of their unbelief, and He condemned them for it. We sometimes think we need a sign or to hear from Him outside His Word, but His Word is enough. It was obvious that He Himself was the sign they were looking for, a sign of mercy, but still they wouldn't believe because they were spiritually blind and so are we.

On Sunday morning, Bro. Richard Piles shared a message from the book of Luke titled, "Prioritizing Others." The point of the message was that believers should have an outward focus of forgiving, serving, and giving to others by adjusting the focus of our faith to Jesus as Lord. In the evening, Bro. To these four young men God gave knowledge and understanding of all kinds of literature and learning. And Daniel could understand visions and dreams of all kinds.

Rev. David Banks' brought a lesson from the new series The Quest titled "The Quest For Character" with scripture text taken from Daniel. God gave the young Hebrews, Daniel, Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego, wisdom and knowledge. The four young men refused to worship the image the king had set up. We also are given many ordinary gifts which we can choose to use to do God's work. We can feed the homeless, help an elderly neighbor, for God's relentless quest is to form Christ's character in us, and He will not quit until the work is complete.

Upcoming dates to remember: Sunday, on Thanksgiving Street.

November 23, we have our Thanksgiving Meal after worship. Remember our Live Nativity on Saturday, December 6, from 5:00 - 7:00 p.m. The Service of Remembrance will be on Wednesday, December 3, at 6:00 p.m., in the sanctuary. We will light candles in remembrance, hope and encouragement. The service is open to everyone so feel free to invite friends and family to attend with you.

Birthday wishes go to Maybeth McMahan, Nancy Bowyer, Reggie Riddle, Julian Britt and Colby Ross. Anniversary wishes go to Colby and Linda Ross, and Aaron and Iessica Ćalhoun.

Pray for Leanne Harris, Emily Manning, Loretta Godwin and Juandell Weddle.

Let us make November a month of thankfulness and let's let God's light shine

Kermit Douglas Harper

1947 - 2025

A visitation for Kermit Douglas Harper, 78, was held on November 19 at Wilson-Orwosky Funeral Home Chapel.

Mr. Harper died on November 12, 2025, at his home in Emory. He was born on September 17, 1947 in Checotah, Oklahoma, to Columbus A. and Helen Esther Pope (Sturgeon).

Mr. Harper dedicated much of his professional life as a truck driver for Merchants. He served in the US Navy before embarking on his journey in the trucking industry. It was during his service that he met Jonnie Morgan, the love of his life and his best friend, whom he married on September 12, 1969, in Dallas. They were married for 55 years.

He enjoyed hunting, fishing, and archery and was known for his handyman skills, often taking on projects to improve his home and help those around him. He also lived his life full of faith and was a dedicated Christian and long time member of the Church of Christ.

Mr. Harper is survived by his wife, Jonnie L. Harper; children, Kory D. Harper, Regina M. Friskes and Ashley M. Harper; sisters, Phillis A. Clay and Jacqualine Brotherton; five grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren; and numerous nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his parents; and sisters, Wanda Heath and Netti Faye

Understanding Social Security Spousal Benefits

Dear Savvy Senior, How do Social Security spousal benefits work? My wife, who's entitled to?

Primary Breadwinner

What is she

Dear Breadwinner, Spousal benefit questions are among the most frequently asked and confusing parts of Social Security. The rules that govern qualifying and claiming are knotty, and there are many exceptions. But understanding how these benefits work is crucial for maximizing your family's retirement income. Here's what you should know.

What Are Spousal Benefits?

Social Security spousal benefits are designed to provide retirement income to spouses who either didn't work or worked sporadically/ part-time and earned significantly less than their spouses over their working lifetime. A stay-at-home parent is a good example of a spousal benefit recipient.

Who's Qualifies?

To qualify for spousal benefits, you and your wife must meet three conditions: Your wife must be at least age 62; you must be married for a year or more; and you must already be collecting your retirement benefits.

Different rules apply for ex-spouses. Ex-spouses (if you were married for at least 10 years and are not remarried) can receive a spousal benefit based on an exspouse's record even if your ex has not yet filed for their own benefits, but your ex must be age 62 or older.

How Much Are Spousal Benefits?

The amount your wife would get for spousal benefits will depend on your earning's history and her claiming age.

The maximum spousal benefit is 50 percent of your Primary Insurance Amount (PIA), which is that amount you're entitled to at full benefit retirement age (FRA). But your wife will only get that much if she waits until her full retirement age to file, which is 67 if she was born in 1960 or Unfortunately, spousal benefits cannot be increased by her waiting beyond FRA, but they are reduced by taking them early. So, for example, if your wife were to start collecting her spousal benefits at age 62 (the earliest possible age), she would collect only 32.5 percent of your PIA.

To calculate exactly how much your wife's spousal benefits would be reduced by taking them before her FRA see SSA.gov/OACT/quickcalc/spouse.html.

You also need to know that because spousal benefits are based on your PIA, even if you (the primary earner) retire early, before you reach your FRA, your wife's spousal benefit will not be reduced. Just as they will not increase if you delay claiming your benefits beyond your FRA.

You should also note that if your wife worked and is entitled to benefits on her own work record, but it's less than what she's entitled to as a spouse, Social Security will pay her the higher of the two amounts, but not both.

Survivor Benefits

In addition to spousal benefits Social Security also pays survivor benefits to spouses and ex-spouses starting at age 60 (50 if disabled).

So, if your wife outlives you, she'll be able to switch from her spousal benefits to survivor benefits and receive a higher payment. Survivor benefits range between 71.5 and 100 percent of the deceased's benefit, based on your wife's age when she claims.

There is, however, one exception. Surviving spouses and ex-spouses that are caring for a child (or children) of the deceased worker, and they are under age 16 or disabled, are eligible to receive 75 percent of the worker's benefit amount at any age.

Online Calculators

There are several online calculators that can help you and your wife figure out the best time to claim your benefits to ensure you get the highest possible lifetime payout. One that's completely free to use OpenSocialSecurity.com. Or for a more thorough analysis use MaximizeMySocialSecurity. com. This tool, which costs $49 for a year, will run what-if scenarios based on your circumstances to find your best strategy

NOTICE OF RATE CHANGE REQUEST

On October 14, 2025, Southwestern Electric Power Company (SWEPCO or Company) filed a Petition and Statement of Intent to Change Rates (the Petition) with the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUC or the Commission) in Docket No. 58819, and with those municipal authorities in its Texas service territory that have original jurisdiction over SWEPCO's electric rates. This notice is being published in accordance with Section 36.103 of the Public Utility Regulatory Act and Commission Procedural Rule 16 Tex. Admin. Code (TAC) § 22.51(a)(1).

SWEPCO has approximately 191,000 Texas retail customers. All such customers and all classes of customers will be affected by the relief requested in SWEPCO's Petition.

SWEPCO's request to change its rates is based on the financial results for a 12-month test year ending on March 31, 2025. SWEPCO's Petition requests approval for a total Texas retail base rate revenue requirement of $641,516,844 and a base rate increase of $163,896,434, an increase of 41.67 % over adjusted Texas retail Test Year base rate revenues exclusive of fuel and rider revenues. The proposed increase in Texas retail revenues will be offset by setting SWEPCO's current TCRF, DCRF, Advanced Metering System (AMS) surcharge, and a portion of Net Operating Loss Carry forward (NOLC) surcharge to zero, a reduction of $68,960,435. Thus, the net proposed increase is $94,935,998. The overall impact of the proposed revenue requirement, considering both fuel and non-fuel revenues, is a 13.48% increase. The impact of the rate change on various customer classes will vary from the overall impact described in this notice, as shown in the table below. In addition, SWEPCO is seeking recovery of the reasonable rate-case expenses, including expenses paid to reimburse intervening municipalities, that it incurs in this case and those rate-case expenses incurred in three prior dockets that have yet to be recovered.

A Residential Service customer using 1,000 kilowatt-hours of energy per month will see an increase in their total bill (including fuel costs and rate riders) of $16.43 per month, an increase of approximately 12.15%.

The following table presents the percentage annual revenue increases, by type of service, under the proposed rates in this proceeding:

Major Rate Class	Base	Revenue Change	Base Percent Increase	Total % Change @ Proposed
Residential	$	65,986,839	41.26%	12.90%
General Service	$	7,941,672	29.84%	4.33%
Light & Power	$	42,089,946	29.84%	7.39%
Cotton Gin	$	175,099	83.33%	17.46%
Total Commercial	$	50,206,717	29.91%	6.96%
Industrial	$	41,899,554	78.73%	30.66%
Total Commercial & Industrial	$	92,106,271	41.66%	13.72%
Municipal	$	2,421,140	62.58%	20.06%
Municipal Lighting	$	1,689,786	62.29%	25.52%
Total Municipal	$	4,110,926	62.46%	21.95%
Lighting	$	1,691,431	29.45%	7.30%

SWEPCO has proposed that its requested rate change become effective 35 days after the filing of the Petition and Statement of Intent. The proposed effective date is subject to suspension and extension by actions that may be taken by the Commission and other regulatory authorities.

SWEPCO also seeks to reconcile its Advanced Metering System (AMS) deployment costs through March 31, 2025. SWEPCO is requesting to (1) implement new base rates reflecting its ongoing costs to provide AMS and (2) reconcile AMS costs with AMS surcharge revenues under 16 TAC § 25.130. At the conclusion of this proceeding, with the implementation of new base rates, SWEPCO proposes to eliminate the AMS surcharge and roll AMS capital expenditures and AMS operations and maintenance costs into base rates.

SWEPCO is proposing various revisions to most tariffs and schedules. In addition, in order to facilitate future TCRF, DCRF, and Generation Cost Recovery Rider (GCRR) filings pursuant to 16 TAC §§ 25.239, 25.243, and 25.248, respectively, SWEPCO requests that the Commission: (1) set the Company's current TCRF and DCRF to zero; and (2) establish in this docket the baseline values consisting of the inputs to the calculations that will be used to calculate SWEPCO's TCRF, DCRF, and GCRR in future dockets. Persons with questions or who want more information on this Petition may contact SWEPCO at 428 Travis Street, Shreveport, Louisiana 71101, or call toll-free at (888) 216-3523 during normal business hours. A complete copy of the Petition and related filings is available for inspection at the address listed in the previous sentence.

Persons who wish to intervene in or comment upon these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible, as an intervention deadline will be imposed. A request to intervene or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, P.O. Box 13326, Austin, Texas 78711-3326. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission at (512) 936-7120 or (888) 782-8477. Hearing- and speech-impaired individuals may contact the Commission through Relay Texas at (800) 735-2989. The deadline for intervention in the proceeding is 45 days after the date the application was filed with the Commission, unless otherwise provided by order of the presiding officer. A request for intervention or request for further information should refer to Docket No. 58819.

Close To Home Bear Hunting

It's been said we have a several years, very often with little bit of everything here in my good friend Larry Texas and I think that is prospective, we have just about every big game species as the mountain states, excluding moose.

There is a healthy herd of antelope and mule deer out in the Panhandle and desert mule deer and even free range elk out in the Trans Pecos. But what about black bear? At present there is no open season for bear in Texas but if they keep trickling over from southeast Oklahoma into counties in northeast Texas along the Red River who knows, Texans might once again be hunting bear in east Texas! In Red River County where I was raised and adjacent Lamar county, deer hunters have been capturing bear photos on trail cameras for a couple decades and many complain about bears overturning corn feeders. A raccoon can cause problems with a feeder but a black bear can completely dismantle it in efforts to enjoy a free meal

Black bear have been their numbers have steadily grown the last couple decades. Back in 2009 the state opened its first bear season and in ensuing years, more and more hunters are hunting black bear much closer to home.

This past week, a couple of good friends, Edgar Cotton and his son David, from Kaufman County, traveled across the Red River to hunt bear on land owned by the Choctaw Nation at the Choctaw Hunting Lodge located about an hour or so north of Paris, Texas. The Choctaw Nation owns 44,000 acres of beautiful mountain country about half of which is land hunted by the lodge; the other half is leased on long term leases to

From a hunting the scenery, abundant game and accommodations immediately after his first visit a few years ago. Edgar Cotton owns some great hunting and fishing land in Kaufman County, not far from where I live and Larry and I often join Edgar and his son on their piece of outdoor heaven. When Larry and I began talking about the great times we've had up in Oklahoma hunting and fishing at the lodge, the Cottons were eager to experience all this vast tract of mountain country had to offer. They loved the idea the lodge was less than three hours away.

The eastern strain of wild turkey are plentiful in southeast Oklahoma and especially on the land owned by the Choctaw Nation, thanks to insightful wildlife management by Biologist Matt Gamble and his team. The Cotton's first trip for eastern turkey was back in the spring and while there around the evening campfire visiting with Weishuhn and lodge manager Dusty Vickrey, their interest in a close-tohome bear hunt was perked! Dusty and his wife Nacolh the lodge which range from almost food plots and managing the wildlife and hunting.

As Edgar and David stated after their recent bear hunt, "This place is absolutely awesome, it's a hunting and fishing paradise managed by folks that make you feel right at home. Everything is top notch, especially the meals Nacolh prepares. That smothered steak dish she makes is worth the drive up here!" NOW TO THE HUNT-Dustin and Larry Weishuhn had a plan developed that looked very promising prior to the opening of archery bear season last week. Dustin had ground blinds set up on a couple of spots he had been baiting but just before the opener, a big bear that had been hitting one of the spots vacated the premises, possibegun to fall and he was hitting a few oaks dropping acorns. But the other bait site had a couple of bears showing up in the afternoon on a very regular basis. Trail camera's photos showed two bears on the bait mid afternoon the day before the opener.

Rather than hunt separate stands, the decision was made for both Edgar and David to hunt the 'hot' spot. Luckily, Dusty had set up a big roomy ground blind near the bait pile. Jeff Rice, the producer of "A Sportsmans Life" TV show was present with his trusty video camera to capture all the action for an upcoming segment of the show. Granted, with three in the blind, it was a bit crowded, but as things turned out, well worth enduring the above average afternoon temperature.

The bear had been showing up very close to 3:00 o'clock, but by 4:00 p.m. with no bear, it was getting a bit crowded and warm in the blind. The plan was to stay put until dark. After all, the bears were not punching a clock as the perfect time to feed and hopes were high they would show. Just before 7:00 p.m. and a bit of sweating in the blind, a big oversee all the activities at lumbering boar weighing 350 present in southeast Okla- planning company events approached the bait barrel. homa for many years but and weddings to planting Edgar said he knew it was a big bear, it dwarfed the size of the baited oil drum. Edgar made a perfect shot with his crossbow and the bear made it just out of site and dropped within a few yards of the

> It was now the time when high fives and reveling usually takes place but the plan was to sit quietly and hope the second bear appeared. The stars must have been aligned because few minutes later, David's bear appeared and again, the arrow found
